

Know Fast Facts, Personal Life and Career of Gina Kimmel

Gina Kimmel, an American costume designer, worked on television exclusively. She is Jimmy Kimmel, the former comedian's wife, the executive producer and host of Jimmy Kimmel Live. She met Kimmel, originally from Illinois, as they were attending Arizona State University. Gina was married in 1988, and it was her graduation year. They both struggled as Kimmel started making a name as a comedian for himself. In the early 1990s, children were born. In 1999, Kimmel launched 'The Man Show,' and made several appearances as his wife.

Gina was born in the USA on 13 December, 1964. Gina is active as a costume designer and is working on several television projects. They divorced in 2002 but have a cordial relationship, helping in raising together their two children. She also runs an online loungewear store vintage-inspired garnering the attention of media recently. No matter, what it was, focusing on parenting was the main work of Gina Kimmel.

Personal Life

Gina was born in Hoffman Estates, a village in Illinois, USA. She went from 1983 to 1985 to Northern Illinois University, and enrolled at Arizona State University and completed in 1988, her graduation. She met Kimmel in Arizona and then left before graduation.

They married on June 25, 1988, and moved to Seattle, Washington. It was where Kimmel landed as the co-host of a job alongside Kent Voss. In 1991, they both had Katie, their first daughter. Following her was Kevin on September 19, 1993. He is like his parents in the entertainment industry. He is an actor and a crew member.

Fast Facts of Gina Kimmel

- She runs a vintage lingerie company
- Gina, with Jimmy had two children
- Gina is also a costume designer
- She loves traveling

Gina Kimmel's Career

Gina Kimmel, after her divorce, traveled a bit and made it to Chicago. She got training in costume designing and was getting towards vintage-style clothing. She served in television films as a costume designer and also made cameo appearances. In 2012, both films premiered. In 2014, she set up Maddy James, an apparel company, to sell her vintage-inspired loungewear line. To raise $15,000, she initiated a Kickstarter campaign. To raise money, she sold products on Etsy. The company grew enough to make sales through its website of its merchandise. Her connections and her popularity in the entertainment sector help her afloat the firm. For more details visit: <https://affairpost.com/gina-kimmel-jimmys-first-wife-bio-kids-katie-kevin-education-divorce-net-worth/>